To whom it may concern,

Over the last couple of years Foxton Beach School has become more and more involved with groups in our area that are trying to make a change for good to our community.

We have been working with the Landcare Trust to undertake a number of planting days with our senior classes in a bid to clean up Whitebait Creek and to teach our children about the effects they are having on the Estuary by doing this work.

I was very pleased to see that the Wildlife Foxton Trust has recently been created and I see that the aims for the trust will have some wide reaching effects on not only the environment of the Foxton/ Foxton Beach area but also the economic development of our area as well.

We support the trust in their endeavours to establish a facility that not only local schools, groups etc. could use, but tourists could be brought into the town to see the varied wildlife that we have to offer.

A major focus that we have as a school is ensuring that the National Curriculum is met by using our local environment. I feel that this initiative will tie in very nicely to this vision.

If there is any way that we as a school can support the trust then we would be more than happy to do so.

Yours faithfully
